

Leaving a Legacy: Beneficiary Designations

Periodically reviewing your beneficiary selections is a wise idea to ensure you are leaving your legacy as you intend. As time marches on, decisions and relationships can sometimes change. The following occasions are excellent opportunities for you to review your beneficiary designations:

- Your birthday! It's a good idea to review beneficiaries each year, and using your birthday acts as a built-in reminder.
- Job changes, such as a new job or retirement.
- Family matters, including becoming a parent or grandparent; marriages or divorces; or a death in the family.
- Financial moves, such as purchasing a new home, taking out a loan or updating your financial plan.

Fill out the worksheet below to get started! Remember, your insurance professional can help you fill out the appropriate paperwork to change beneficiary designations on an account. This worksheet serves as a planning and review tool only.
